State Promises Pension Survey Before October 1

The city received a promise this week from the State that an actuarial survey will be completed and in the hands of City Clerk Peter Mawdsley by October 1, so that the cost to the city of the state retirement plan for Carmel city employees will be available to citizens in ample time before the November 2 general election, when the pension proposition will be put to the voters.

Tuesday Mawdsley sent off to Sacramento the payroll data necessary for the survey. It included monthly wages and years of employment of 33 employees in three categories: fire (3 employees), police (10), and miscellaneous. The miscellaneous group comprises 12 street department workers, five library staff members and three employees in the finance department.

Costs will be figured on a plan that will provide pension, death and disability benefits. Benefits will be based on service prior to effective date of the city's participation in the plan; that is, it will be retroactive to the date of first employment, and this phase of the plan will involve a lump sum payment in addition to the current contribution of city and employees. This initial cost will be liquidated over a 25-year period. In general the maximum retirement benefit pays 50 percent of the monthly salary earned in the last five years for employees who have worked for the city for 20 years; this is scaled down in proportion to years of service.

Retirement age for police and fire employees is 55; all others 60. In the later category there are provisions allowing for voluntary continuation of employment.

If the plan is approved by the voters, the employees must vote according to categories as to whether or not they wish to be included in the plan. One group, such as police may vote to be included; another, such as the library, street department and finance, can elect to be left out.

Planning Board Asks For Control Of Wall Signs

The planning commission, meeting Wednesday, recommended to the city council an ordinance to control painting large commercial signs on business buildings in the city. Such wall advertising mars the beauty of the city and, "no number of pine trees along the sidewalk can hide the garish effect" one of the members commented.

The commission also requested permission from the council to have a free hand in landscaping one block of the center strip of Ocean Avenue.

It asked that the various city departments assemble data on cost if the Walker tract were included in the city limits, and in this connection, Donald Craig suggested that certain unimproved areas adjacent to the tract be included in the boundaries so they could be acquired as a city park.

Hearings on the New Presbyterian Church's application to have another lot included in its use permit was continued over to Aug. 25.

Editor's

Column

Now it appears that joy over the city's purchase of a mechanical street sweeper is not unanimous. In the last issue of Carmel's, weekly publication of the Carmel Lions Club, Dr. Donald M. Peterson, who is the editor, had this comment to make:

"City Is Taken To The Cleaners." "The City of Carmel-by-the-Sea has really gone mechanized and can no longer be considered a quaint village. It has purchased a street sweeper for much thousands of dollars. This news was received to the tune of people getting on both sides of the argument, for and against.

"Apparently it is going to create a problem in the town's already tremendous problem, that of insufficient parking. Apparently certain streets are going to be restricted for all-night parking in order that the street sweeper may run up and down, noisily picking up the waste. But not to be outdone by any other progressive council, the Carmel council voted to buy the equipment. I therefore urge that the Carmelions buy all the available property to make room for cars that are going to be forced off the streets nights for the sweeping. This means, of course, that the local inn keepers who do not have their own parking lots, and about one in eight do, will have to enlarge their basements.

"Would not it have been easier to hire the same man to spend eight hours a day with a broom and push cart, going up one street and down the other over the business area cleaning the streets quietly and surely without affecting the calm of this fair city of ours? But then, after all, we are different here in Carmel."

We have heard similar protests about the sweeper this week but they have probably come too late. The city has ordered the machine, and we don't suppose a city can cancel an order for a mechanical sweeper like a woman returns a dress to a shop on the grounds that it doesn't fit or isn't becoming.

But there is still time for citizens to let the council know how they feel about an ordinance prohibiting all night parking in the business district. Formal action was not taken at the August council meeting. (Continued on Page Twelve)

Other principals in this western-with-music are Joan Sawyer, a bright new singing and dancing star, as the sweet-young-Irish-thing, Rose, and John Forbes as the scar-faced sheriff hero, Shannon; supporting roles are filled by Betty Fowleston and Bill Kaye. David Eldridge directs the show, which features a large singing and dancing chorus of local talent; the handsome period costumes they wear have been loaned by Paramount Studios.

Silver Star is a brand-new opus for Ric Masten, who wrote the lyrics and script, and Don Adams, who composed its original tunes. The show will play tonight, tomorrow and Sunday, with four performances over the long Labor Day weekend. Proceeds from the ticket sale go into the Kiwanis Youth Activities Fund.

Monterey Co. Fair Opens Thursday

The Monterey County Fair, boasting one of the finest horse shows in the state, opens Thursday with record totals of entries in every division.

The horse show alone has more than 300 entries for a program of seven afternoon and evening performances; proportionately large entries have been received for the Agriculture and Floriculture divisions, Home Economics, the Crafts Show and the Art and Photographic division, and the large commercial exhibit division.

A full program of free entertainment by both amateur and professional talent will be given daily in the open-air amphitheatre, and for the youngsters, whose free day is Friday, there is a special Junior Ranch playground with prize contests.

Forest Theater Comedies Amusing, Especially So Is Helena's Husband; They'll Play Again This Week End

By ROSALIND WALL

By far the best of the three comedies currently presented at the Forest Theater was Helena's husband in which Karen Williams co-starred with Edgar Bryant, but the outstanding performance was Blanche Tolmie's who appeared as Queen Elizabeth in The Dark Lady.

Blanche Tolmie's voice and impressive and distinctly of the grand tradition. One could well believe in the beauty and power of Elizabeth when she lifted her veil—to speak and flirt a little with the impertinent and flamboyant Master Will Shakespeare, who was always copping other peoples' lines and scribbling them down (inaccurately) in a little notebook.

Evelyn Scardigh in, I believe, her maiden performance did a creditable job as The Dark Lady, jealous and scorned by that flirt Will Shakespeare, Albert Charles Houghton in the Shakespeare role, as Shaw conceived it here, was rather vain and swashbuckling; and Arthur Bryant made an excellent warder.

The second of the three comedies, Two Gentlemen from Soho by A. P. Herbert, was very British. It gives the delightful feeling that anything goes in the theatre, after all, and that it is possible to give free rein to one's most fantastic and improbable ideas. The lines, fluently Shakespearian but in the 1920's vein and decor, were wonderfully impressive for their poetry and essential nonsense. In the end everyone lay dead on the stage. Farcically corpse after corpse lay piled, having died one by one as the result of an incident involving British restrictions as to the closing hours in pubs.

Outstanding was the dance executed by Topsey (Gail Maitre).

Unofficial returns are: 616 yes, 207 no. Total vote was 852. Broken down to precincts: Bay's returns are: yes 39, no 5; Sunset: yes 577, no 202.

The board has 29 absentee ballots to open and count.

POLL FAVORS FIRE DISTRICT

A postcard poll tabulated this week show that a majority of property owners in unincorporated areas of Carmel favor the establishment of a fire protection district.

Capt. Archer Allen, president of Carmel Unincorporated, said that of the 467 cards returned, 376—or approximately 80 percent—were in favor of the proposed fire district, while only 91 were opposed. A total of 1325 cards were sent out by Carmel Unincorporated.

An executive committee will meet next week to decide on boundaries to be submitted to the boundary committee for approval.

PINE CONE SOFTBALL TEAM AT OAKLAND SUNDAY NIGHT

Manager Joe Nicholson's ambitious Pine Cone softball aggregation surges into the bigtime Sunday night as the printers make their debut in the 1954 State Tournament at Greenman Field in Oakland. The Coners will play the winner of the Chico-Contra Costa match which is slated for Saturday evening at 8:45. Off the season's records it appears that the Antioch Merchants of Contra Costa pack too much power for Chico and will move into the winner's bracket against the local newboys.

If the Pine Cone wins on Sunday night, they will return to action on Friday, August 27th at Greenman diamond #1. A loss will find Joe's jolters in action at diamond #3 at 7:15 p.m. on August 27th. As this tourney is a double-elimination affair, two losses terminates action, and a double-loser heads for home to return no more. However, should the Coners win on August 27th they will return to action again on the night of August 28th.

As in past games, Manager Joe will rely on the strong right arm of Jim Morton to keep the printers in tournament contention. An infield of Art Harber, Henry Meyer, Bob Updike, Walt Frey and Gene Vandervort will attempt to throttle the base-running activity of the enemy, while an outfield of Dick Weer, Don Canham, Marty Hansen, and John DeAmaral goes for the long ones off the bat of the opposition. Pitching excellence should be a strong point in favor of the Pine Cone as the incomparable Ky Miyamoto will be on hand to back up starter Morton. Ky has been suffering from a back ailment for most of the season but is reported in top condition for Sunday night's tournament play and is certain to see action in one of the tourney games.

Carmel fans intending to see the Coners in State Tournament action will find Greenman Field at 66th Avenue and East 14th Street, Oakland, California. The entire tournament is held at the same field and fans need only to wander a few yards to catch three different games in action.

CARMEL PLAYS IN MONTEREY BAY JUNIOR CHAMPIONSHIPS

Carmel's junior softball stars under the direction of Jack Giles, Youth Center director, trek to Watsonville next Tuesday night to compete in the softball tourney engineered by the Watsonville recreation department. The Carmel lads will cross bats with the Castroville Juniors in the opening game of the teen-age tournament, relying on the swift tosses of Johnny DeAmaral to get them over the strong and rugged Junior Dons. Besides Castroville, the Carmel Juniors will have to contend with Watsonville, Santa Cruz, Salinas, and Pacific Grove before they can fly the teen-age championship pennant.

Not content with action in the Tri-County tournament at Watsonville, the Carmel Juniors are locked up in a playoff race with the Monterey Juniors in the El Estero softball league. Next Wednesday night, the village youngsters play a crucial tilt with Monterey to decide the champions of the second-half El Estero league race. Starting slowly and absorbing some horrendous beatings, Carmel has come strong in the stretch to rate the favorites role in the league playoffs. Anchored by the fine pitching of Johnny DeAmaral and the steady hitting of Jim Konrad, the Carmel Juniors are recognized as the class of the circuit at the present time. Solid infield play by Merle Pitman, Konrad, Craig Chapman, Mike Mosolf, and David Gray has backed up DeAmaral's near-perfect hurling. Outfields Ted Ledbetter, Jon Farrell, and Pierre Olivie have blanketed the outer pastures for the village juniors.

ONE WIN, THREE LOSSES FOR KIP'S SOFTBALLERS

In last week's softball play, Kip's set themselves up by defeating the Bell Telephone team from Monterey, 6 to 2, then turned around to sustain three losses in a row. The Kippers were downed by the San Juan Merchants 9 to 0, and lost out to the Naval Air Station by a close 6 to 4 decision. Wednesday night Kips was again defeated by the Pine Cone, 5-2.

Johnny De Amaral pitched a two-hitter against the Bell team and was the losing pitcher against the N.A.S., while Buddy De Amaral was charged with the loss to the Merchants. The hot San Juan pitcher gave up only two hits to the hapless Kippers.

Slugging power for Kip's was provided by Dannis Narvaes, Ray Danielson, Gene Cota and Marty Artellan. Other outstanding players were Paul Artellan, Newt Goodrich and first-sacker Tom Hefling, who made some sterling plays in the infield.

Kip's team will wind up the season on Tuesday night with a doubleheader. The first game, at 7:00 o'clock, will find the all-southpaw Kippers facing the Monterey All Stars, and in the second game they'll cross bats with a potent club from Fort Ord.

CHAMPIONSHIP SPORTS CAR GYMKHANA HERE SEPT. 19

September 19 is the date set for the second annual California Sports Car Gymkhana, sponsored by the Pebble Beach Sports Car Club. Selected teams from sports car clubs all over northern and central California will compete in the event, which will take place at Carmel Valley Village, on a large field behind White Oak Inn.

The gymkhana is not a race of any sort, but a test of driving skill. Trophies will be awarded to both team and individual winners in each of two divisions, under 100-inch wheelbase (MG, Porsche, etc.) and over 100-inch wheelbase (Jaguar, Riley, etc.). PBSCC will hold its own elimination trials for the championship on September 12.

Five PBSCC members plan to compete in the road races at Santa Barbara September 5 and 6: Greg Teaby (Jaguar XK-120), J. P. Kunstle (Porsche), Bert Taylor (Porsche Special), I. W. Stephenson (Arnolt-Bristol) and Mrs. Bernice Riolo (MG). Teaby, Kunstle and Taylor all took class wins in the recent Santa Clara Road Races. Stephenson's Arnolt-Bristol, the first of its marque on the coast, will also be driven by Kunstle in one of the two main events.

Winners of the PBSCC "Idiot's Delight" run, which was held last Sunday, were also announced at Monday's meeting of the club. Dave Davison, driving a Porsche, took first place in the cross-country event, with Greg Teaby second and Bob White, in an Austin-Healey, third.

HORSEMEN'S SHOW SUNDAY

The last inter-club show of the year will be given Sunday by the Carmel Valley Horsemen's Association at Holman's Guest Ranch. Post entries will be accepted in all events except roping.

BY DAISY BOSTICK
GRANT WALLACE

The death of Grant Wallace has saddened many of us old-timers. It occurred on Thursday, August 12, at his home on Tamalpais Road, Berkeley. It brought to a close a long and useful life filled with romance, adventure, scientific investigation and metaphysical research.

I first knew the Wallace family about 1920. They were Grant, his wife Margaret (we called her Peggy), their lovely little daughter Moira and a very small Kevin, the idol of the household. That was a long time ago. Moira is now Mrs. Guthrie Couvoisier and she, along with her famous husband, designs and manufactures beautiful art objects. Kevin has a flair for journalism and now carries a by-line in the San Francisco Chronicle.

In those old golden days of Carmel I knew the Wallace family well. They were good friends of mine and I sat and listened many times to Grant who with a merry little twinkle in his eye told me tales of his youthful adventures. He had been a lion hunter, a forest ranger, a cow puncher. He had chased rebels with Richard Harding Davis in Cuba, participated as world correspondent in the Russo-Japanese War. He spent a year with the Navajo Indians at their reservation in New Mexico and was named by them Big Chief Never Quit. He explored fifteen ancient ruins of cities, one being a communal house, eight stories high and containing twelve hundred rooms. His researches took the form of an article which was refused by several magazines because they believed the accounts overdrawn. But Grant Wallace never knew defeat. He surveyed and drew details of structures, wrote of the life and discoveries of the founders and later had the satisfaction of knowing that prominent archeological societies including the Smithsonian Institute were making investigations in the same field.

Grant Wallace's journalistic career was long and varied. He became in turn cartoonist, humorist, artist, reporter and editorial writer. He made the first animated cartoon. He started Hearst's color page, supplied comic poetry to a New York paper, became editorial writer on the San Francisco Bulletin; he succeeded Irvin Cobb on the New York Times and helped Thomas Lawson in a muck-raking campaign in the United States Senate.

Grant started his literary career by working as a printer's devil for one dollar a week and was fired for asking an increase in salary. He gave me this account of the incident: "I wrote the paper, made decisions relating to its policy and borrowed type from the other town printer to call him a liar—all the while my boss slept off a jag in a nearby stairway." After many decades Grant still felt indignant that he was refused the two dollars a week that he had asked for.

At the age of seventeen Grant found himself a professor at the head of a department in a Middle West University. Later he went to New York and met Dan Beard who was illustrating Mark Twain's A Connecticut Yankee at King Arthur's Court. Grant posed for the illustrations and met the famous humorist who would come into the studio, sit down, joke and criticize. He became a contributor to many national magazines. He once owned a business college and taught banking and accounting. He had a large school of newspaper illustration—one of his graduates was Clare Briggs, creator of When a Feller Needs a Friend. Subsequently he became a motion picture director and editor and handled some feature plays.

Once, when his health was impaired, Grant started a nursery for scientific experiment on trees and vegetables. This resulted in a treatise on the eucalyptus which made him a recognized authority; he planted the forest—now Seaside—just beyond the old Del Monte Hotel with thousands of eucalyptus trees. He sent to Australia for seeds of the famous mahogany eucalyptus and from this planting he gave some of the trees to the city of Carmel. A few of them, are still standing like old soldiers who never die. I remember one very beautiful specimen at the corner of Seventh and Monte Verde. Luther Burbank became his friend and once wrote of him: "I know of no man in the world who is striking heavier blows in the cause of Truth than Grant Wallace."

Joaquin Miller once lost a very fine pipe by making a bet with Grant Wallace that he could name two things which Grant had never done. One was that he had never made a horseshoe and the other that he had never trimmed a lady's hat. Grant had done both and had even taken a prize at a party for having trimmed the most disreputable hat in the bunch.

During the years that the Wallace family lived in Carmel, Grant took an interest in community affairs, particularly in the Forest Theater, sometimes playing prominent roles in the plays and pageants. I seem to remember Grant, a fine figure of a man, riding a black horse and leading a group of soldiers in one of the pageants. It might have been the Serra play with Grant playing Portola. Grant's Irish wife Peggy—she that had been a McVicker—devoted herself to her little brood and provided hospitality to all those who came to their studio. Through all the years of their marriage I am sure that she has meant much more to Grant than did his right hand.

Grant Wallace was always a seeker of Truth. He never worshipped established rules. He cast aside creeds, formulas, dogmas, and applied himself to a scientific study of metaphysics—a sort of Fourth Dimension. He was something of a mystic and unlike many who are working along metaphysical lines he was always interested in the ordinary affairs of our every-day world, and had a keen sense of human responsibility.

Several years ago the family moved to Berkeley and I haven't seen any of them for a long time, but I have always thought tenderly of Grant Wallace. He was a rare soul and an understanding friend.

Beautiful People Opens Sept. 3 At Players Circle

The Golden Bough's fall and winter season will open on Labor Day weekend with a theater-in-the-round production of William Saroyan's The Beautiful People, under the direction of Lee Crowe. The cast includes such Peninsula favorites as Don Gunderson, Myrtrose Craig, Gene Eplett, Douglas MacFarland, Mason Wright, Eleanor Mott and Edwin Craig. Technical direction will be in the hands of William Kappy, with Edward Kuster serving as production director for the Golden Bough Corporation.

This will be the first Saroyan play since the Pulitzer Prize-winning The Time of Your Life, presented by the Golden Bough shortly before the former building was destroyed by fire. The Beautiful People, like all works by this writer, is unconventional, happy-go-lucky, unpredictable, with a heart-warming finish. The action takes place in an oldtime hilltop house in San Francisco, in the period between the earthquake and fire of 1906 and World War I.

The opening performances will take place Friday to Monday inclusive, September 3-6.

Democrats Stage "Day" For Roybal

Today has been designated as "Roybal Day" by the four Democrat clubs of Monterey County, which are sponsoring a candidate's tour for Edward Roybal, the first Spanish-American to be nominated for lieutenant governor.

Mr. Roybal will appear twice on the Monterey Peninsula in the course of his day-long campaign tour. A luncheon in his honor will be held at the Fireside Cafe in Seaside, and late this afternoon, following a quick trip to Castroville and several campaign visits in Monterey, Roybal will be feted at a reception at the home of

Forest Theater Comedies Amusing, Play This Week End

who was magnificently costumed in red, and the "pallid young man", Hubert (Peter Layman), who had been the Duchess's dancing partner. Everyone in the cast was good. Eric Borg was brilliant as the poetic and rather fumbling, bumbling, ridiculous Lord Withers; Bud Rose as the waiter with a strangely white face and dark shadows, silent as a stone until the end, was not only excellent but intriguing. Awfully funny and with a voice that was perfect for the part was Marjorie Munk, the billowing Duchess who so madly loved the saxophone and was in search of a last gay fling. Virginia Kirby as Letitia, the Duchess's daughter, was suitably reserved, embarrassed, and sophisticated. Both the detectives, Plum of Scotland Yard (Harry Dinwiddie), and Sneak, the private eye (Hans Munser), were fine, the latter in his grotesque little prancings and posturings most amusing.

The Moeller play, Helena's Husband, was more familiarly and obviously a comedy. I heard many chortles from husbands as King Menelaus (Edgar Bryant) complained of Helen and seized the opportunity to get rid of her when ardent Paris (James Smith) appeared. Karen Williams as the vain, vacuous, languid Helen, narcissistically absorbed in her rouge pots and hip exercises, did an excellent job of characterization; and we liked the way she conveyed the rapidity and flatness of Helen's responses.

Grace Carol Kearney is sans doute a real trouper. A scene-stealer from way back, she definitely captured laurels in her supporting role of Tsumu, the Nubian slave. Half-naked, black, and no doubt freezing to death, her mobile aliveness made vivid a part which could easily have been overlooked. Edgar Bryant, by the way, as the fat, peace-loving and much beleaguered-and-bored-by-wife King Menelaus had the play's best lines and was very good, very funny, very pathetic and very ridiculous. Milton Stitt turned up with his usual fine performance as Analytikos, the King's librarian; and James Smith was quite lyric (and pretty to look at) as the impulsive Paris.

On the whole these three comedies make a good evening's entertainment. The sets and costumes were excellent; the former by Herbert Heron, the latter by Hazel McLellan, Suzanne Armstrong, and Luisa Bane.

Margaret Graham Sings For Guests At Hollow Hills

On Sunday evening, August 15, in the music room at Hollow Hills, a few dozen invited guests were charmed by the program presented by Margaret Graham, soprano, with Mary Whitmer at the piano.

Mrs. Graham, and her husband, Lt. John H. Graham, and their children recently returned from Rome, where he was with the Naval charge d'affaires. She has a beautiful lyric soprano voice which she uses with skill and artistry. "It is so easy to listen to" was a comment from a tired concert-goer, who had struggled bravely recently and frequently to follow with enthusiasm the vocal efforts of other singers. Another opinion expressed by a distinguished musician present on Sunday evening was that Mrs. Graham's smile would carry her any place that she wanted to go.

The program was entitled Around the World in Music; in other words the singer took her listeners on a voyage to many lands. Beginning with Scotland, the tour continued through Spain, France, Germany, Sicily, Ceylon, and Japan.

The final group brought us back to America with a few characteristic songs of the homeland.

As encores Mrs. Graham sang two Puccini arias, which were admirably suited to her voice and temperament.

Throughout the program Mrs.

Dr. Hagerty Selects Great Books Panel

The art of intelligent conversation will be demonstrated in a panel discussion of the Book of Job at a public meeting to be held Thursday evening at 8:00 o'clock in the Sunset School cafeteria. The program is under the joint sponsorship of the Great Books Council of the Monterey Peninsula and the public libraries of Carmel, Monterey, Pacific Grove and Salinas.

Ron Mackay of the Monterey County Welfare Department will be chairman of the meeting. Discussion leaders are Milton Mayer, Carmel writer and lecturer, and James L. Hagerty, professor of philosophy at St. Mary's College and chairman of the San Francisco Great Books Council.

The panelists will be Louis Gay Balsam of Monterey Peninsula College; Ephraim Doner, Carmel painter; Edward Kennedy, Monterey newspaper editor; the Very Rev. James M. Malloch, Dean of St. James' Cathedral, Fresno; William K. Stewart, Pacific Grove attorney; Bruce Ariss, Monterey artist; Mr. and Mrs. Chester V. Lewis of Carmel; Mr. and Mrs. Edward J. Mintz of Salinas, Mrs. Harriet Roberts of Carmel, Mr. and Mrs. Thomas J. Slakey of Fort Ord, and Lt. Charles Alexander of the Na-

Following the panel discussion the meeting will be open to questions by the audience and the work of the Great Books Foundation will be explained by the chairman, who will also announce plans for Great Books groups in this area in the fall.

She was born December 3, 1886, in Omagh, Ireland, the daughter of the late Anna Noble Bell and Robert Bell. She lived for many years in Philadelphia, then moved to Sausalito; she came to Carmel three years ago to make her home here with a friend, Miss Emma Drumm, on San Carlos near Alta street.

She leaves a sister, Mrs. Walter Stitteler of Conshohocken, Pennsylvania, and two brothers, James Bell of Indianapolis and Robert Bell of Baltimore.

Funeral services and burial took place in Conshohocken.

Preview Of Beautiful People Benefits S.P.C.A.

A preview of The Beautiful People, a play by William Saroyan, directed by Lee Crowe, will be given at the Golden Bough's Theatre-in-the-Round on the Thursday evening of the Labor Day weekend, September 2.

Through the co-operation of the management of the Playhouse and of friends of the Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Animals, the entire proceeds of the sale of tickets will be given to that Society.

The funds of the Society have been all but exhausted by the building of their new, hygienic, heated shelter. The performance of The Beautiful People will celebrate the attainment of this 30-year-old, hardly-earned ambition of the SPCA and also reduce, it is hoped, the red side of the ledger.

Audiences who saw Mr. Crowe's production of Ring Around the Moon will realize what a rare opportunity may be theirs, to combine an artistic and spiritual adventure with help to a good cause, all in one evening.

Days Of The Dons

By J. WILLIAM MAC LENNAN

(Mr. Mac Lennan, now a Carmel resident, was formerly dean of men and head of the history department, University of California at Santa Barbara.)

The Merienda held annually by the Monterey History and Art Association calls attention to the interesting story of California and the unusual way of life here when California was part of Spain and later of Mexico. Though many of the comforts were lacking, life was happy and carefree, especially for the men. There was no real poverty; food, though simple, was abundant; there were no taxes on land, houses or income; and every possible occasion was taken for enjoyment.

Although Alta (Upper) California was not settled by Spain until 1770, it had been known to the Spaniards for over two hundred years. In the early part of the fifteenth century, about the time Cortez was plundering Mexico and Pizarro was carrying off the wealth of Peru, a Spanish novelist by the name of Montalvo wrote a romance concerning a country in the New World, which he called California. He described it as a land rich in gold and ruled by Amazons who rode on griffins. Charles I, King of Spain, became interested and in 1542 sent Juan Rodriguez Cabrillo to find that country and also to locate the Straits of Anian, which some of the maps of that time showed cutting across North America and offering a shorter water route to the Philippines than that by way of Cape Horn.

Though Cabrillo sailed far up the coast of North America, discovered and named the Bay of Monterey, he found no short cut across the continent, no gold, and no Amazons; but he gave the glamorous name, California, to the land.

For sixty years more Upper California lay neglected, except for the annual visits of the Manila Galleons on their way to Mexico. In the rivalry of the sixteenth century to find the Spice Islands the Dutch won out; so Manila became Spain's headquarters for the collection of spices and other oriental luxuries, and the base for their transportation to Spain. As she was involved much of the time in wars with other European nations the safest route from the Philippines was across the Pacific to Mexico, where the cargoes were transported overland to the Atlantic side and carried to Spain by the fleet of Spanish merchant ships sailing regularly under the protection of a large flotilla of Spanish war vessels.

For more than 250 years, with a few intermissions, galleons sailed from Manila to Acapulco, Mexico, laden with the wealth of the Orient: silks, brocades, jade, silver, gold, precious stones, pearls, etc. At first two or three galleons, sometimes not over 40 to 80 tons, made the voyage each year; later only one galleon a year, of not over 500 tons, was permitted to make the voyage because the merchants of Seville, who controlled the trade with Mexico, feared the competition of cheap goods from the Orient.

The passage out, from Mexico to Manila, was by the southern route, and took less than two months because of the favoring winds in that latitude. The passage back, from Manila to Mexico, was the longest and most dangerous route ever regularly maintained for any length of time by any nation, lasting from five to seven months; to obtain favoring winds the galleons had to follow the Japanese current to 40 or 42 degrees north latitude before turning east to America. Some of the ships were lost in typhoons off the coast of Japan; others were so seriously damaged by storms that they could never have reached their final destination without refitting in California.

Only the burning desire to go home or the prospect of winning a fortune induced anyone

FOUNTAIN OF TREVI

*The white floating deepness furls up, swirls,
Spirals like cape of winds
Formed, and blown from nacreous shell.*

*The mares rear up on either side of Neptune
Majestically rushing, but ever still.
Sea-men and nymphs pursue
And sylphened subdue, their lithe bodies
Birdlike with the liting.
With windflowers etched in their hair
That blowing, blew—silence
Still as Sargasso Sea.*

*Only the courtyard doves stir deft wings in the pulsed-blue sky
Hovering over the quaint sea-horns that sound, but never sound.*

*This stillform catches motion,
Whirls up motion into graven outlines:
Sea-gods lifting from acanthus, and shell,
Leaping as from a white glacier
Held between baroque and Doric columns.
Only the water-bells move in a glissant prism
of jewels
Flashing with color of cobalt seas.*

—VERA LA CLAUSTRA.

INDIAN PAGEANT

*She comes at starlight, when the moon pours silver
Upon the darkling sapphire of the River.*

This westing River, with its many voices:

Its lisping, laughing, wailing, dying voices;

Its mighty, melic, rolling river voices!

Out of the past, she comes — this Indian maiden.

It is the moon of love-call and of mating.

Fairest of all her tribe is Umatilla—

Fairer than Cayuse maid or Walla Walla.

Last of the daughters of the lost Wallula!

Into the moonlight now — bright headband glistens,

Mowich, the deer, stands still, the bronze maid listens.

The whispered call! The forest-sighing thins

To one clear voice: "The pageant now begins!"

But brave and squaw and papoose, all outran

The princess-moccasined "Melissa Ann."

—BLANCHE DE GOOD LOFTON

MOMENT IN A GARDEN

*The very quietude is music now
That drips from every moonlit bush and bough.
The wind is mute, the garrulous leaves are still,
Silent the hoot-owl and the whip-poor-will.*

*There is a presence in this eerie place.
I feel the breath of night across my face,
Lifting the spirit to a star-brushed plane
I may not never reach into again.*

—LUCIA TRENT

to take the return passage. Since the cabins of the galleons were reserved for the precious cargo, the passengers, except for an occasional high dignitary of the government or of the church, lived and slept on the open deck, exposed first to the heat of the tropics and later to the chill and rains of the north Pacific. Few of them could have survived without a stop en route; boredom drove some insane and scurvy carried off others even before reaching California, where occasionally, at Monterey, fresh water and some provisions, chiefly bear meat, rabbits, quail, and squashes were secured. And still a thousand miles of travel remained before reaching Acapulco, Mexico, two months away.

This route remained safe from European enemies until Philip II of Spain became involved in war with Queen Elizabeth of England, and English freebooters entered the Pacific to waylay the Manila Galleons. In order to locate a port which could serve as a base for the protection of the Manila route, and where the galleons could be refitted Philip sent Sebastian Viscaïno, in 1602, to chart the coast of California. But a century and a half passed before any definite steps were taken to settle the land, while Spain wasted her strength in a series of great struggles: the Revolt of the Netherlands, The Thirty Years War, The War of the Spanish Succession, and The Seven Years War.

About the middle of the eighteenth century it became evident that Spain's hold on the Pacific was no longer secure. England had captured Manila during the Seven Years War and held it for a while, and shortly afterwards she began sending so-called scientific expeditions into the Pacific; and it was rumored that she was planning to occupy California.

In 1768, Charles III of Spain gave instructions to the Viceroy of New Spain, at Mexico City, for the immediate occupation of Upper California. Men and material were collected in Lower California. Two expeditions set out: one by land, and the other on the ships San Antonio and San Carlos; both expeditions to meet at San Diego and reorganize before going on to Monterey Harbor to establish a settlement and a presidio. Sailing against head winds the San Antonio took 54 days to reach San Diego from the tip of Lower California, and the San Carlos 111 days. Scurvy took a heavy toll of the sailors (in the end all but twelve died), and the ships were not able to proceed to Monterey until reinforcements could arrive.

The army, marching overland, some 500 miles, came through to San Diego with little loss; and it was decided that the main part of it should push on under the command of Don Gaspar Portola, governor of Lower California. Starting in June, 1769, the men and the animals suffered greatly from thirst, because of the drying up of the streams near the coast during the summer months. Fortunately the natives were friendly, though in places too much so.

While the troops were encamped at Santa Barbara, the Indians presented them with several generous supplies of fish, far more than they could use, and danced most of the night, accompanying themselves on harsh-sounding reed pipes. Next day Portola moved the camp to get rid of too much fish and entertainment; but the natives followed and spread the news of the coming of the Spaniards. Indians began arriving from all the nearby villages, bringing more fish and other presents; and as the troops continued north it became evident that there was great rivalry among the villages to surpass each other in presents and entertainment.

When Portola reached Monterey Bay he failed to recognize it, and finding there no enclosed harbor such as he expected from Viscaïno's description, he went on to San Francisco Bay. Disappointed in his search, and believing that perhaps some catastrophe of nature had destroyed the harbor after it had been explored by

The Karolyi Concert

By EBBEN WHITTLESEY

Friday the thirteenth turned out to be a lucky day for the large audience assembled in Sunset Auditorium to listen to the piano playing of Julian Karolyi. Appearing under the Denny-Watrous management, Mr. Karolyi was revisiting the scene of his comparatively recent triumph as a Bach Festival soloist.

This remarkable technician, approaching middle age, was a European child prodigy who made good as a man. He looks every inch the virtuoso, complete with a vigorous mop of hair.

The mood of the evening was set, in a sense, by the opening selection, Cesar Franck's Prelude, Choral and Fugue is a monumental, highly colored composition in the baroque tradition. It was played with a thoughtful and sensitive style which avoided overstatement of dramatic passages. The colorful arpeggiando effects, dear to the heart of the organist composer, were not over-emphasized. The powerful cumulative effect of the music was carefully exploited. The artist avoided confusion in the elaborate structure, achieving a total result which only a superb technician gifted with considerable insight could attain.

By way of fine contrast we then heard Chopin's Nocturne in E minor, published posthumously. The treatment was soft, reflective, and very clear. This was followed by the sparkling Chopin Fantasia Impromptu, Opus 66. The contrasting tempi were very well handled, and there was dramatic speed and lightness in the runs.

The Chopin group was concluded with the familiar Scherzo in C sharp minor with its powerful dramatic progressions and delicate passages in the right hand. I would have preferred an evening of Chopin and Franck to some of the program material which followed.

Schumann's Carnaval is a long, elaborate and immature composition. It is colorful, full of life as its subject, but the music seems a little overdressed to modern ears. I don't think it was worth the time spent on it, but the music could hardly have been more ably performed. The artist never gave an impression of superficiality, because he exacted the fullest meaning from each changing mood of the music.

After the intermission the display of virtuosity continued with Liszt's La Leggeria. Composed by one of the greatest pianists of his time, this music is full of problems of technique and speed worthy of a brilliant artist. These problems were all met by Mr. Karolyi with firmness, brilliance and clarity. The interpretation was coherent and never superficial.

Ravel's Ondine, proved to be an interesting companion piece for the Liszt. The moods are similar, the elaborate ornament is common to both. Ravel's idiom falls more freshly on the contemporary ear.

Unable to resist another technical triumph, the artist then played Debussy's Fireworks. The reading was imaginative and exciting. Delicate drawingroom pyrotechnics spurted into life before the mind's eye.

Finally there was Saint-Saens' Etude en Forme de Valse. Here was color and feverish execution enough for anyone. The music seemed full of sparkling humor, and won an ovation. Three fine encores, including a Hungarian Rhapsody, I believe, completed a brilliant evening.

Days of the Dons . . .

Viscaino 170 years earlier, he turned back and encamped for about two weeks near what is now the Carmel River, to rest his men. By this time the food supply was almost exhausted, game was scarce, and the men tried to appease their hunger on sea gulls and pelicans without much success. Fortunately, some hunters sent into the mountains returned with bear meat, which helped, but a few mules had to be sacrificed for food before the men were strong enough to begin the homeward trek to San Diego, some 500 miles distant.

On arriving at San Diego and comparing notes with the other members of the expedition who had remained there, it was agreed that Portola had indeed found Monterey Harbor, and the next year he returned and established the Monterey Presidio. Padre Serra arrived soon afterwards on the San Antonio and founded the Mission San Carlos de Borromeo, the first of a series of missions, one day's journey apart, reaching from San Diego to beyond San Francisco. Presidios were established at San Francisco, at San Diego, and at Santa Barbara which had under its protection El Pueblo de Nuestra Senora la Reina de los Angeles. In 1775, Don Juan Baptista de Anza led an expedition of 230 men, women, and children, with cattle and necessary supplies from Sonora, Mexico, across the Colorado Desert to found a settlement on San Francisco Bay.

However, the population of California (Spanish and Mexican) grew very slowly. By 1820, fifty years after the founding of Monterey, it did not exceed 3000. Most of the lands were under the control of the Missions, trade with foreign countries was prohibited, and war prevented Spain from continuing her help. In the year that de Anza led the settlers across the desert, the American Revolution broke out; four years later Spain joined France and Holland in an alliance against England; then came the French Revo-

Wedding Plans Completed

Invitations are in the mail and the list of attendants has been completed for the wedding of Edwina Brown of Carmel and James Sydney Pipe of Salinas, which will take place at 2:00 o'clock on the afternoon of September 9 at the Church of the Wayfarer. The reception will follow at Monterey Peninsula Country Club.

The bride-elect, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Edward Brown, has named as her matron-of-honor Mrs. William Rissel (Carol Ann Smith) of Pebble Beach; Edwina served as Carol's maid of honor at the latter's wedding early this spring. Bridesmaids will be Mrs. Donald Peterson (Mavis Jones) of Carmel, Mrs. William Fitch of Carmel Valley and Miss Dariel (Sherry) Henderson of Carmel.

A series of showers in Edwina's honor have been planned by her attendants, the first of which will be given this evening by Mavis Peterson at the home of her mother, Mrs. Clifford Jones, in Pebble Beach. Sunday afternoon, Mrs. William Rissel and Mrs. Alfred Greene will be co-hostesses at a luncheon and shower to take place at Mrs. Greene's home in Palo Alto, and next Friday evening Dariel Henderson will honor Edwina with a miscellaneous shower at her home here. The Earl Martins and the William Fitches will entertain the entire wedding party at a rehearsal dinner on the evening preceding the nuptials.

Not to be ignored in the preparations is the future benedict himself, who is finishing off his work at the Salinas Post Office and making arrangements for the new apartment home in San Jose which he and Edwina will occupy following their honeymoon. A graduate of Salinas High School and a Marine Corps veteran, Jim is the son of Mr. and Mrs. S. W. Pipe of Salinas. His brother, Jack Pipe, was invited to be best man, but will be unable to get down from San Francisco for the Thursday afternoon wedding; in his stead, Jim has asked William Fitch of Carmel Valley to perform the duties of honor attendant. Ushers will be Howard Veit II of Pebble Beach, Michael McClure of Carmel and William Avenger of San Jose.

Jim and Edwina will have to cut their honeymoon short in order to be in San Jose in time for fall college registration; he plans to begin his studies in architecture at San Jose Junior College, while Edwina will enter her senior year at San Jose State, where she is majoring in journalism and public relations.

Fashion Show at Country Club

A fashion show luncheon will be held Wednesday at Monterey Peninsula Country Club, with an Oriental theme to dominate the decor for the occasion.

New fall styles will be shown by the Art-Zelle Shop, with Arthur Rathhaus serving as commentator. Models will be Mrs. Ray Ramsey, Mrs. Elmer Bauer, Mrs. Dan Searle, Mrs. D. E. Chappell, Mrs. S. F. Biltz, Mrs. M. M. McElwaine, Mrs. William Dawson, Miss Joanne Puget, Miss Ann De Vaughn and Miss Nancy Hane.

Mrs. Richard L. Hane is chairman for the event, assisted by Mrs. Paul Hicks, Mrs. Neil De Vaughn, Mrs. T. W. Ryan, Mrs. Leon Hagstrom and Mrs. Bud Giles.

The luncheon and fashion show will begin at 1:15 o'clock; cocktails will be served from 12:30 until 1:00 o'clock.

La Causerie Program August 28

Jean Carry, formerly of the Theatre Louis Jouvet in Paris, will give a program of French readings and monologues as the feature attraction of the next meeting of La Causerie Francaise, to take place at 8:00 o'clock Saturday evening, August 28, in the Carmel Art Gallery.

Lovers of the French language and theatre will find especial delight in Mr. Carry's program, which will include selections by Corneille, Moliere, Victor Hugo and Jules Romain in addition to several contemporary humorous monologues.

Refreshments will be served following the program, to which all members of La Causerie and their guests are invited, with the following reminder: "La plus perdue de toutes les journees est celle ou l'on n'a pas ri."

Wilson in Cadet Tactics

Ernest B. Wilson, son of Colonel and Mrs. C. B. Wilson of Carmel, recently completed a month's training at the Army's Infantry School at Fort Benning, Georgia. Wilson, a junior at West Point, and his classmates received both skull practice and field training during the intensive infantry course, which was preceded by 10 days of Navy instruction in amphibious maneuvers and a two-weeks familiarization course in Air Force defense operations.

Padre Trails

At the Padre Trails Camera Club meeting Saturday night at Room 11, Sunset School, a group of black and white prints from the Watsonville Camera Club will be exhibited in the first of a series of exchange shows that has been arranged recently among the camera clubs of the county. Padre Trails members are asked to bring four exhibition prints each for a return show at Watsonville.

Gerald Ray in Mexico

Gerald Ray, who went from Carmel High to a job with the Walt Disney studios in Hollywood and finally to UPA as a top-flight animator, has just moved himself, his wife Megan and their three children to Mexico, where he plans to spend a year working as a director with an American film company in Mexico City.

Gerald, the son of Mrs. John Neikirk of Carmel, feels that he'll probably see more of his Carmel friends and contemporaries in Mexico than he has in Southern California: most Carmelites traveling south tend to go all the way, not just to Los Angeles. But in any case, UPA wants him back when his year's leave of absence is up, and in the meantime, Gerald feels that the experience in directing will be invaluable to his learning all sides of the animated films business. The outfit he's working for in Mexico City is called Dibujos Animados.

Mrs. Neikirk got a good look at the kind of work her son does when she visited the family in Los Angeles last November and was taken on a tour of the UPA studios. Gerald got his first experience in animation with Disney, where he worked both before and after a stint with the Air Force; he joined UPA not long after the company's first highly successful production, Gerald McBoing-Boing; since that time, he's helped to create and animate such characters as Mr. and Mrs. Budget and the nearsighted Mr. Magoo.

Raised and schooled in Carmel, Gerald was a member of the first class to be graduated from the new Carmel High School. He contributed some art work to the first edition of the high school yearbook, of which he and Colden Whitman were co-editors.

Craftsman for Town House

Alice Alcott, a member of the Carmel Crafts Guild, will talk on her hobby of handcrafting jewelry at Wednesday's program at Town House. Miss Alcott will also show some of her own workmanship, as well as her tools and equipment and examples of the raw materials she uses in her jewelry work. The program will be at 3:00, with tea and a social hour at 4:00 o'clock.

The exhibition of oil paintings by Jane Buffington will continue through the month at Town House.

Bryce Dewey Engaged

Mr. and Mrs. E. S. McLaughlin of Burlingame have announced the engagement of their daughter, Jeanne, to Bryce Chamberlain Dewey, son of Dr. and Mrs. Hartley G. Dewey of Carmel and Pebble Beach.

The wedding date has been tentatively set for September 18, and will take place in Burlingame following the future benedict's return from the Fiji Islands, where he is away on business for Pan-American Airways.

Prior to his departure earlier this month, Bryce and his fiancée were honored at a party given by Dr. and Mrs. Dewey at the Beach Club in Pebble Beach.

Miss McLaughlin recently returned to the state after a year in Washington, D. C., as secretary to Congressman J. Arthur Younger, and is now with his office in San Mateo. She is also secretary of the San Mateo County Young Republicans. Before her present employment, she attended school in Burlingame and was graduated from San Mateo Junior College. Her brother, Thomas, is a student at San Jose State.

Bryce, who works out of Pan American Airways' headquarters at San Francisco Airport, was graduated from the University of California at Davis. He grew up in Yosemite National Park, where Dr. Dewey was medical director for many years, and attended Chadwick School at Rolling Hills and Beverly Hills High School. He is the brother of Capt. Hartley C. Dewey of Sacramento, and Madison F. Dewey of Beryl, Utah.

Mrs. Van Johnson WHY DO YOU PREFER BLUE BONNET?

Mrs. Van Johnson, Beverly Hills, California, wife of the prominent movie star, lives constantly in the social spotlight.

"I choose BLUE BONNET Margarine for three convincing reasons. Its sunny-sweet flavor and smooth-spreading quality delight us at the table. Then, while it's loaded with nutrition especially valuable to children—food-energy and both vitamins A and D—it costs little. It definitely gives you all 3: Flavor, Nutrition. Economy!"

Russ Bohlke Wed in Richmond

Sally Ann Watson and Russell Allen Bohlke were married Saturday at Holy Trinity Episcopal Church in Richmond, the 3:00 o'clock service read by the Rev. George W. Ridgeway.

The bride was given in marriage by her father, Francis Alan Watson of Richmond; her sister-in-law, Mrs. Francis Alan Watson, Jr., of Berkeley, was matron of honor.

Russ' father, Raymond Bohlke of Carmel, was best man. Ushers were Lew McCreery of Carmel, John Graham of Washington, D.C., Ottiwell Jones of San Francisco and Norville Yerkes of San Mateo.

The wedding reception was held in the garden of the Watsons' home in Richmond. Following the reception, the new Mr. and Mrs. Bohlke left on a fortnight's honeymoon trip which will terminate in Phoenix, where both plan to enter Thunderbird School this fall. Both Russ and his bride are graduates of the University of California. Russ, who graduated from Carmel High in 1944, was president of the student body and an outstanding athlete; he received his degree in social welfare from U.C. last year and has since had an administrative job on campus. Sally was graduated from the university this spring, and this summer has worked for an importing firm in San Francisco.

High School Gang Reunited

This has been a sort of old home week for a bunch of former Carmel High kids, in town for late-summer visits with family and friends. Among the temporary repatriates are Mr. and Mrs. Danny Bell (Carol Bedau), who arrived Monday with their two young sons for a short holiday here with Dan's parents, the Frank M. Bells.

Dan and Carol and the bairns David and Kenneth have been spending the summer in Corvallis, where Danny's been working towards his M.A. in education at Oregon State. Sometime today the couple will leave for their home in Alhambra, and in the fall Dan will resume his job as wood shop instructor at nearby Rosemead High School.

On Tuesday evening, Mrs. Julian von Meier gave a small dinner party for Dan and Carol at her home; also present were Mr. and Mrs. Carol McKenney (Kathie von Meier), former Carmel High schoolmates of the Bells', who're also here for a visit.

Dan's parents were hosts at another dinner party in their honor on Wednesday; on hand for the occasion, in addition to the Bell family, was Danny's sister, Becky, and her husband John Westover, and Mr. and Mrs. Bob Mullnix (Sally Ann Monflee), all of whom attended the high school at about the same time.

Johnson-Egbert Wedding

Recent additions to Carmel's young marrieds are Mr. and Mrs. John J. Egbert (Patricia Lee Johnson), who exchanged vows August 6 at a small family wedding held at the home of the bride's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Fred E. Johnson, in Carmel Meadows.

Dr. K. Fillmore Gray officiated at the 3:30 o'clock ceremony, which was followed by a champagne reception. Miss Carol Sims was Patricia's maid of honor, while Jack Dial of Pacific Grove stood up with John as best man.

Others present included the groom's mother, Mrs. James Egbert of Pacific Grove, and his brother and two sisters, as well as Patricia's younger sister, Barbara.

Patricia, who was graduated this spring from Carmel High School, plans to enter Monterey Peninsula College in the fall. John, a graduate of Pacific Grove High School, is employed in Monterey. The young couple are making their home in Carmel.

Wayfarer Jubilee Planned

Mr. and Mrs. F. Henry Venn have been chosen as general chairmen for the Golden Jubilee Celebration of the Church of the Wayfarer. With their committee they are beginning the plans for the observance in November of the 50th anniversary of the founding of the church, which was incorporated on November 4, 1904.

All-Church Picnic Wednesday

For the second year the Men of the Wayfarer are sponsoring an All-Church Picnic, to be held Wednesday evening on the beach at the foot of 13th Avenue. The activities will begin at 6:00 o'clock when families will gather around the fires provided by the committee. Gordon K. Reid has announced other committees which will furnish the coffee and the water-melons for dessert. The evening will close with a community sing around the fire. Last year's picnic drew one of the largest crowds which old timers could remember assembled in one group on Carmel beach, and a repeat performance is anticipated.

Valleyites Report on Fiesta

Mr. and Mrs. Scott James Monroe and Mrs. Kathryn Lansdowne of Carmel Valley took advantage of the beautiful weather last weekend to motor south to Santa Barbara for the traditional fiesta, in which the town recreates the customs and costumes of old Spanish days.

The group found the trip delightful and the fiesta entertainment superb; among other things, they enjoyed parades, guided tours, and nightly musical and dancing performances in the sunken gardens of the old courthouse. They were particularly impressed by an outdoor production of Rio Rita and the many equestrian exhibitions which highlighted the fiesta, as well as a children's dance program by pupils of Jose Manero. A continuous puppet show provided entertainment for the younger fry, and for their elders, Mrs. Lansdowne reports, there was "singing and dancing in the streets at all hours, and never a dull moment."

Among the notables spotted by the Valleyites over the gala weekend were Chief Justice Earl Warren and Mrs. Warren and their daughters Virginia and Nina, and Governor Goodwin Knight and his new bride, all of whom attended the fiesta opening in the old mission plaza. They also saw Leo Carillo and Montie Montana in the Thursday parade.

The weekend was such a success that the Valley trio are already planning for a return to Santa Barbara for La Fiesta, 1955.

Far-Flung Garguiolos

From Korea and Hawaii come reports of the brothers Garguiolo, Dick and Bill, who left this spring to pursue their respective military and academic careers.

Dick, who joined the Army in June of last year, is now an administrative supervisor with the headquarters company of the 25th Infantry Division, stationed north of Seoul. He was at Fort Ord until last May, when he was transferred to Fort Lewis, Washington, and arrived in Korea last month. — complete with brand-new sergeant's stripes. His overseas assignment came along just in time to prevent his being best man at Bill's marriage to the former June Stratton.

Bill and his bride, meantime, are happily established in an apartment overlooking Diamond Head in Honolulu, and report that they have run into a whole slew of Carmelites vacationing in the Islands. Bill is attending the University of Hawaii, while June is working as a nurse in the Children's Hospital at Honolulu.

The boys' parents, Mr. and Mrs. William R. Garguiolo, are thinking there might be a chance of a family reunion in Honolulu—if, when Dick receives his Army discharge (which won't happen for some time yet), he is able to stop off at the Islands en route home, then they might fly out to meet him and visit Bill and June.

Another Ruster Do

John and Katy Ruster of Carmel and Bixby Creek recently threw what they call a small neighborhood do in joint celebration of their birthdays (August 5th and 7th, respectively), and in honor of the arrival of Katy's father, Royden Vosburg, for a birthday-weekend visit.

The birthday gala, which combined the better features of a desert and a cocktail party, included the usual toasts and congratulations, and something rather special in the way of a cake—a rich and toothsome mocha torte baked for the occasion by Mrs. Bianca Kulka. Mr. Vosburg did his bit for the event by taking the Rusters out for a birthday dinner. Over the weekend, the family decamped to the Rusters' down-coast retreat for a quiet holiday away-from-it-all.

This week almost found Katy leaving for Palm Springs and what she says would have been her first solo vacation in eight years. She was due to have left Tuesday, along with a girl friend, and the two had mapped out an idyllic week in sunshine and swimming pools. However, early this week the Rusters' daughter Heidi came down with what appeared to be measles. Although no spots showed, Katy felt the prospect was conclusive enough to require cancellation of the trip.

U.S.O. Musicales

The next recital to be held at the USO Club in Monterey will be at 8:15 p.m., August 26. Performers will be Mrs. Evalyn Loomis, soprano, Mrs. Helen Shutes, violin, and Mrs. Mary Whitmer, piano. The public is cordially invited to attend.

At the musicale on Thursday, last week, Mr. Richard Storrs of Seaside, accompanied by his wife at the piano, sang several operatic and light classical pieces including M'Appari by Flotow, Serenade by Romberg, Mattinata by Leoncavallo, Come Back to Sorrento by De Curtis, and Without a Song by Rose.

Mr. Thomas Baker of Salinas played the first movement, Sonata, Opus 31, No. 3 in E Flat by Beethoven, Fantasia in F Minor by Chopin, and Ondine by Ravel, as piano solos.

Mr. Baker and Miss Dorothy Heer, also of Salinas, played the Overture in D, from Orchestral Suite No. 3 by Bach, Floods of Spring, and Tears by Rachmaninoff, L'Embarquement Pour Cythere by Poulenc, and the Coronation Scene from Boris Godounoff by Moussorgsky, as piano duets.

The overture by Bach was arranged by Mr. Baker himself for two pianos.

CHURCHESCHRISTIAN SCIENCE SERMON

The importance of relying wholeheartedly on God, divine Mind, for guidance will be stressed at Christian Science services Sunday.

The Lesson-Sermon entitled "Mind" will include the following passage from the King James Version of the Bible (Proverbs 4:5,6): "Trust in the Lord with all thine heart; and lean not unto thine own understanding. In all thy ways acknowledge him, and he shall direct thy paths."

The practical availability of spiritual guidance will also be stressed in the following passage from "Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures" by Mary Baker Eddy (254:10-12): "When we wait patiently on God and seek Truth righteously, He directs our path."

The Golden Text is from Daniel (2:20,21): "Blessed be the name of God for ever and ever: for wisdom and might are his: . . . he giveth wisdom unto the wise, and knowledge to them that know understanding."

New Twig for a Big Tree

The birth this week of Deborah Paula Drewien, whose parents are Mr. and Mrs. Max E. Drewien, adds still another member to the wonderfully large Carmel family which already is virtually a community within the community.

Little Deborah, who arrived Sunday at Peninsula Hospital, is the 15th grandchild of Mrs. Millie Funchess and the 40th great-grandchild of Mrs. Jessie M. Askew. She's also the fifth youngster for the Drewiens, whose other children—Linda, Carolyn, Max Jr. and Drusilla—range from six to 12 years in age. W. M. Drewien of Guadalajara, Mexico, is the paternal grandfather of this fine brood.

Deborah's homecoming with her mother (the former Pauline Funchess) occasioned a small-scale family reunion on Wednesday at the home of Mrs. Millie Funchess, with various members of the clan showing up for a "birthday" luncheon and a look at the newcomer. To list all the immediate family in Carmel would be a task for a statistician: of Mrs. Jessie Askew's 10 children, all but one are in Carmel, as are most of her 21 grandchildren and the two-score great-grandchildren.

In addition, Mrs. Funchess' four children are together in Carmel for the first time in a good while; the one out-of-town member of her family, daughter Jean (Mrs. A. W. Leonard), is here for a month's visit from her home in Long Island, New York, and was on hand to meet her new niece.

Another Milestone for Kusters

This week, without calling any particular attention to the fact, Ted and Gay Kuster observed their 26th wedding anniversary and Ted's birthday.

A year ago, when they had their silver anniversary, the Kuster family gave an all-out celebration, with an open-house at their home in Carmel Valley which found over 200 of their friends showing up to offer congratulations.

But this week, with daughter Marcia in Salt Lake City and son Colin away on a driving trip to New Mexico, the Kusters decided to let the occasion pass quietly.

Club Luncheon Monday

The Carmel Woman's Club will give its second summer luncheon at the clubhouse at 12:30 o'clock Monday afternoon, with each member asked to bring a hot dish, salad or dessert.

Mrs. Alexander Cleary, hospitality chairman, has announced that guests of members will be welcome at the luncheon, and that those who wish are invited to stay for bridge. Chairman of the event is Mrs. Edward Hicks, assisted by Mrs. Gladys Hawkins, Mrs. Maude Sutherland, Miss Eva Dunbar, Miss Mabel Steen, Mrs. Ella Harris and Mrs. C. W. Fonteneau.

The club is also reminding its members that any salable items earmarked for the annual fall rummage sale may be brought to the clubhouse at any time.

Calleys Have Crafts Show

A joint exhibition of work in clay by Mr. and Mrs. Ernest Calley (Phyllis Enoch) comprises the August show by the Carmel Crafts Guild in the Carmel Library showcase. Mrs. Calley's work demonstrates the manual coil method, while Mr. Calley works from the potters' wheel.

Both the Calleys were active participants in the Crafts Guild's recent crafts-in-the-making show at the Forest Theater. Mrs. Calley, who joined the Guild shortly after her arrival in Carmel two years ago, has traveled for much of her life, and has resided in India, South Africa and England. Mr. Calley, who virtually ranks as a Carmel institution, retired last year after 25 years as manual arts instructor at Sunset School. He now teaches adult classes in ceramics in both Carmel and Pacific Grove schools.

The Needler

by Beth

Woman here in town, cleaning her house after an unexpected and hilarious party, was wondering how so few people could create such a mess. A piece of paper had slipped under a chair and she picked it up, to find written neatly on it, this item: "How, now, all friends of Marquis de Sade!"

Add medical notes: Henri de Mondeville (1260-1320) suggested that in order to sustain the spirits of a patient, "false letters can be written telling of the death of his enemies, or if he is a canon of the Church, he should be told that the bishop is dead and he has been elected." Mondeville also suggests another means of cheer, namely, "solace him by playing on a ten-stringed psaltery."

The warm weather brings out the sun-lovers so, as usual, last week end brought crowds to the beach again. And the crowds, as usual, brought beer cans and coke bottles to clutter up our lovely white sand. An observer tells me that many of the offenders seem to be lads from Fort Ord. Can't they be told, somehow, about our "don't be a litter bug" campaign? Particularly since Fort Ord itself is such a model of neatness.

During a conversation recently, speaking of white sand, one of those present remarked mournfully that he was loathe to see the sand dunes disappear over on the other side of Del Monte Forest, towards Asilomar way. (The sand is taken by the Del Monte Sand Plant and another organization and is used commercially for many things.) But another person in the group added this word of cheer. "After all, in a few hundred years the sand dunes will be back. The sand is used to make beer and coke bottles, the high tides wash them back into the ocean, they are ground against the rocks and eventually will be sand again. So why worry about it?"

On this coffee price situation with the news this week that prices are about to drop, a friend observes that there must have been a strong enough housewives' boycott to force the issue. Green coffee is not moving in Santos, Brazil, because of a drop in demand here, it is said, and this person's theory is that housewives rebelled with their pocketbooks when the price began soaring above a dollar a pound. Be interesting to know for sure if this had anything to do with it.

Mrs. Gida Honored

Mrs. Polly Gida, who recently resigned as executive director of the Monterey Peninsula Girl Scouts, was honored at a potluck dinner party held August 9 at the home of Mrs. Walter Burde. Mrs. John Skillman, on behalf of the Monterey Peninsula Girl Scout Council, presented Mrs. Gida with a "Thank You" badge in recognition of her three years' work with the Girl Scout organization; Mrs. Gida also received a farewell gift from the Scout executive board.

High Fidelity Sound To Be Demonstrated

Demonstrations of the latest high fidelity music systems, loud speakers, tape recorders, and radio tuners will be given this weekend on the Monterey Peninsula, at the San Carlos Hotel, in the New Room.

Sponsored by local sound equipment dealers, the show will be open from 10:00 o'clock in the morning until 10:00 o'clock at night.

Three dimensional sound, demonstrated by a railroad locomotive, a dance orchestra, and a symphony orchestra, will be heard via a $6,000 tape and audio reproducing system. The music critic, Deems Taylor, will be seen and heard in a film explaining high fidelity. New advances in music on tape for the home will be demonstrated. All sizes and types of loud speakers will be offered for inspection and demonstration.

Pat Sumner Gets R.N. Diploma

Patricia Sumner, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Howard Timbers and a former Carmel girl, received her diploma as a registered nurse in graduation ceremonies last Sunday at the Samuel Merritt Hospital School of Nursing in Oakland.

On hand to see Pat capped was her husband, Richard Sumner, and Mr. and Mrs. Timbers. For her first job as an R.N., Patricia will join the staff of Salinas Valley Memorial Hospital this fall.

city meeting. The idea was proposed, and it met with resistance from several councilmen. The city attorney was instructed to draw up an ordinance to present at the September 8 meeting, and that is the time for people who oppose it to be on hand to support the councilmen who were not in favor of it at the last meeting.

The ordinance the city attorney was asked to prepare is more stringent than Dr. Peterson describes. It would prohibit parking between the hours of 2:00 and 5:00 o'clock in the morning, not just on "certain streets" but on all the streets of the business district.

Bert Heron was telling us the other day that when he founded the Forest Theater he had three objectives in mind: to produce original plays by local writers; to put on Shakespeare and other poetic dramas; and to produce "all sorts of plays for the experience it gives in acting, directing, staging, etc."

With the exception of producing original plays (that will come later), the Forest Theater Guild continues to carry out this plan, this year with especially happy results. It produced a beautifully acted and staged As You Like It last month, and last week end presented three one-act plays, giving scope to the talents of three directors and leading roles to three times as many people as the average three-act play would afford.

Light comedy, the one-act plays make no pretensions to being art. They are very well done and have provided a lot of enjoyment to the audiences which have turned out to see them. They will be repeated this weekend.

The Forest Theater Guild, in wisely resisting the obvious—to restrict itself to big productions "in the grand style" simply because it has a big stage—in giving scope to all sorts of talent and appealing to various audience tastes, is admirably fulfilling its function as a community theatre.
